Ladies Night Delight!

You are invited to attend a Fashion
Party in support of Caring Matters Now

And it's all because of me!

Hi! My name is Fay. I was born with a large brown birthmark on my body called a Congenital Melanocytic Naevus. It is similar to a mole like mummy and daddy has, but it covers approximately 65% of my body. The doctors say that it can cause problems like malignancy and involvement of the brain and spinal cord (neurocutaneous melanosis), but unfortunately the doctors don't know enough about my birthmark to be sure. So, mummy and daddy want to raise money for the charity Caring Matters Now, to allow the doctors at Great Ormond Street Hospital to do research and find out more to help me and my friends with the same condition.

When: Friday 5th May 2006, 8pm til Late.

Where: Esse Retail & Therapy, Station Road, Melbourn

Tickets: £7 including a glass of wine on arrival

A big thank you to Sally at Esse, who has kindly offered to donate a percentage from the items sold on the night and a large percentage of bar purchases to the Caring Matters Now Charity.
